TWO CONTENTED CANDIDATES.

Col. Johnston and Elliott in Charleston, S. C.—The former dictates an interview for both of them, making the while incisive comments upon men and things.

Col. George Johnston, of Newberry, and Col. William Elliott, of Beaufort, two of the candidates for the United States Senate to succeed the Hon. John L. McLaurin, came to town yesterday and registered at the Argyle Hotel. A reporter for The News and Courier found them both in Room 22. They were contented and, as Col. Johnston observed, "quite calm."

"We were just discussing transcendentalism," said Col. Johnston quizzically; "what, I ask you, is more interesting, pellucid and fraught with significance than that system of philosophic inquiry which is identified with the name of Kant?"

"None, brutus, none," replied the reporter, timidly.

"Then none have I offended," said Col. Johnston in a satisfied tone. Thereupon the distinguished citizen from Newberry proceeded to discuss men and things in sentences that teemed with epigrams and, occasionally, with the sort of incisive sarcasm that fascinates the victim and then scalps him.

"I am sorry this campaign is over," said Col. Johnston, "I would that there were six more months of it. I have enjoyed it and gained flesh. It has been a frolic; peace and brotherly love have reigned."

"What of the future?" was the next interrogation.

"The future," he replied, solemnly, "is in the hands of The News and Courier. But perhaps," he added quickly, "you can tell me something of the political situation here."

"It is badly mixed, Colonel."

"In what respect?"

"In every respect."

"Along what lines?"

"Along all lines."

"Wherefore?" he persisted.

"In what respect do you mean, Colonel?" replied the Reporter, rather helplessly.

"Pardon me," he said, all urbanity again, "I was only inquisitive—and vacuous."

"Would you or Col. Elliott care to say anything about your candidacy?"

"What shall we do?" he replied, turning to Col. Elliott. "Our opponents have given interviews to the press replete with that hopeless hopefulness which excites emotion too deep for tears. Now it is our turn; what shall we say?"

Col. Elliott replied that he would subscribe to any statement with reference to their respective candidacies which Col. Johnston might make.

"All right," said Col. Johnston, turning to the Reporter, "just take this as I dictate it: 'A newspaper sought an interview with Col. Elliott and Mr. Johnston, found each looking well, unworn by the recent canvass and both absolutely calm and confident. Neither was willing to be boastful for fear of bringing himself in contrast with those who have given out recent interviews to The News and Courier.' Have you got that down? Well, that's all."

It may not be improper to presume that the visit of Col. Johnston and Col. Elliott to Charleston is not wholly devoid of political significance, but of that neither gentleman would vouchsafe a whisper nor a hint.—News and Courier, 25th.

There is no fool like an old fool in love with a young fool.

In the world's chase youth pursues any game; age selects its quarry.

Foley's Honey and Tar affords immediate relief to asthma sufferers in the worst stages, and if taken in time will effect a cure. Sold by Gilder & Weeks.

Some men have almost as much manhood as the women in their family.

Consumption Threatened

"I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption," says C. Unger, 211 Maple street, Champaign, Ill. "I tried a great many remedies and I was under the care of physicians for several months. I used one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. It cured me, and I have not been troubled since." Sold by Gilder & Weeks.

What man likes in open-work stockings—well, it is what goes in them.

A Physician Healed.

Dr. George Ewing, a practicing physician of Smith's Grove, Ky., for over thirty years, writes his personal experience with Foley's Kidney Cure: "For years I had been greatly bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and enlarged prostate gland. I used everything known to the profession without relief, until I commenced to use Foley's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles. I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success." Sold by Gilder & Weeks.

The Ladies' Exchange

Mrs. R. C. Williams respectfully informs the ladies of Newberry and vicinity that she has opened an Exchange for the purchase or exchange of ladies', children's and men's second hand clothing, and solicits their patronage.
